The Local Labour Market

Within the Tees Valley, Health and Social Care jobs play a huge role in society as well as the economy, 33% above the national average. Over 46,500 people work within this sector, only 21% of those are men. This is something that we think is vital to consider when recruiting students to take OCR Cambridge National in Health and Social Care at KS4. The number of boys accessing the course is increasing but is substantially less than the number of girls accessing this course. In the future there is a prediction of 24,000 extra jobs becoming available within this sector – this statistic should encourage students that job roles are available in the future once they have studied this course and progressed at KS5/in higher education. Public Health England has two main focuses within their framework - increased healthy life expectancy and reduced differences in life expectancy between communities. Studying this course will not only provide more well-rounded and knowledgeable individuals but will allow them to apply their skills and knowledge to key issues within their local community.
